SOCIAL SECURITY

Marasco & Nesselbush is Safeguarding your Right to Benefits

Everyone seems to be worried about the solvency of our Social Security disability and retirement funds. If you are on disability or retirement benefits, you may be afraid of a reduction in your monthly benefit. Maybe you are concerned that the fund will suddenly “dry up” and your check will stop altogether. If you are working, you may be distressed by the thought that the disability or retirement trust funds will be “exhausted” by the time you need them.

Marasco & Nesselbush shares your concern. Our firm is proud to represent deserving men, women and children in their fight for Social Security benefits, and that's why we have joined hands with attorneys from across the nation to safeguard your benefits and the reservoirs that fund them. All Marasco & Nesselbush attorneys are active members of the National Organization of Social Security Claimants' Representatives (“NOSSCR”), an influential organization dedicated to defending the laws that protect the disabled. We also work closely with our Congressional delegation to support their efforts to protect your benefits.

Here are the facts: Congress recently passed the “Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015,” which extended the solvency of the Disability Insurance Trust Fund through 2022. The Act

PERSONAL INJURY

Single Father Purchases Home from Motorcycle Accident Proceeds

Marasco & Nesselbush Associate Attorney Tim Lynch achieved a large confidential settlement on behalf of a client who sustained significant bodily injuries as a result of a motorcycle accident that occurred in Massachusetts. The client is a dedicated single father of two minor children. At the time of the accident, he had been on his way home from work to be with his family.

Our client was operating his motorcycle on a stretch of roadway adjacent to Interstate 195. The accident occurred when a negligent motorist attempted a left-hand turn at the end of an exit ramp when it was unsafe to proceed. The negligent driver cut across our client's lane of travel, colliding with his motorcycle nearly head on. Our client's injuries included a fracture, which required surgery and the installation of hardware. He remained hospitalized for several days before being discharged home where he began a long and arduous road to recovery. Over the next few months, our client was cared for at home by visiting nurses and eventually transitioned to a more rigorous outpatient physical therapy program. During his rehabilitation effort, he gradually progressed from using a rolling walker, to crutches, to a cane. Presently, he is doing much better.

Our client had contacted Marasco & Nesselbush soon after the accident, while still in the hospital. As our client fought to regain his physical strength and health, Attorney Lynch pressed his personal injury case forward. When the insurance company refused to pay the client what he deserved, Attorney Lynch filed a lawsuit and built a case so strong, that the insurance company decided to settle, paying the client much more than they had anticipated. Since receiving his settlement, our client is in the process of becoming a first-time homeowner. He plans to use the proceeds to purchase a home for his family of three and to better help his ailing father.

ATTORNEY ANTHONY BUGLIO

Honored as Employee of the Year

Marasco & Nesselbush is proud to recognize an Employee of the Year whose work and dedication reflects the firm's reputation for outstanding client satisfaction and exceptional, trusted legal care. Associate attorney Anthony Buglio has more than 30 years experience helping individuals through the practice of law. Anthony chose to become a lawyer because he had an ability to work with people and solve problems. While working his way through college and law school, he was employed as a restaurant waiter and learned to listen attentively to people in order to serve them better. That experience has served him well in his professional life. He joined Marasco & Nesselbush's Personal Injury Group in 2012 recognizing that Marasco & Nesselbush is distinguished from other law firms because "the overall mission embraced by everyone who works here is to be kind and assist others".

removed the specter of a 19 percent benefit cut at the end of 2016 and avoided a significant increase in Medicare Part B premiums. However, the Act also contains anti-fraud provisions that are intended to protect the program from "mis-use." Every Social Security applicant and recipient should be aware of these provisions:

- Cooperative Disability Investigation ("CDI") units will be established in every state, Washington, DC, and U.S. Territories by October 2022. Rhode Island has a CDI unit that has been dedicated to "identifying and preventing Social Security disability fraud" throughout our state since the spring of 2015. The CDI brings together personnel from the Social Security Administration ("SSA"), its Office of Inspector General, State Disability Determination Services and local law enforcement agencies to analyze "suspicious or questionable" disability claims before benefits are paid. Rhode Island is now one of 31 States with a CDI unit.

- There is an increase of certain civil monetary penalties and creation of new penalties for those who abuse the program. The Act creates a new felony for conspiracy to commit Social Security fraud and increases civil penalties – and time in prison – for those who make "false statements or misrepresentations." Interestingly, these anti-fraud provisions may apply to a "claimant's representative, a translator, current or former SSA employees or a physician or other health care provider who makes a false statement or misrepresentation."

We will remain vigilant, working to protect our clients from changes in the law that could adversely impact them. We will continue to work tirelessly for our clients to preserve the Social Security programs that are vital to them and our nation. Social Security disability benefits provide modest financial support to those who cannot participate in the workforce due to illness. Retirement benefits provide a small return on a large investment involving decades of hard work. Marasco & Nesselbush is dedicated to safeguarding both.
